Senators Favorites As Scandal-Tainted World Series Opens

Walter Johnson on Mound for Washington, With Regular Team in Line.

NEW YORK SCORES FIRST

Kelley, First Up in Second Inning Touches Johnson for Home Run; Nehf on Mound for Giants; Team Appears Self-Conscious on Field.

By United Press

WASHINGTON, D. C., Oct. 4.—Pennant winners for the first time in history, the Washington Senators this afternoon jumped into the fight to give a frenzied city something else that it never had before—a world's champion baseball team.

With two teams so evenly matched that sharps could not decide on a betting favorite and with weather conditions ideal the opener had perfect baseball settings.

The fog and early autumn haze that had caused anxiety in the early hours of the morning gave way at noon before a bright sun and the danger of rain seemed to have been avoided for the afternoon.

Looking neat and classy in new white uniforms the Senators were first on the field. They were given an ovation when they emerged from the dugout and started tossing around a dozen balls. The Giants got a little applause when they came on the field. They acted self-conscious. It seemed to be a very subdued team. The Giants wore their road uniforms of gray.

The line-up:

New York: Lindstrom, 3b; Frisch, 2b; Young, rf; Kelley, cf; Terry, 1b; Wilson, lf; Jackson, ss; Gowdy, c; Nehf, p.

Washington: McNeely, cf; Harris, 2b; Rice, rf; Goslin, lf; Judge, 1b; Bluege, 3b; Peck, ss; Ruel, c; Johnson, p.

A tremendous cheer went up when Johnson took the mound. The game started at 2:11 P. M.

First inning, Giants: Lindstrom flied to McNeely for an easy out. Frisch bunted to Bluege; it was a little pop fly. Young struck out. No runs, no hits, no errors.

First inning, Washington: McNeely flied to Wilson; Harris, out, Jackson to Terry; Terry and Harris collided at first and Terry hurt his left knee but remained in the game; Rice fouled to Lindstrom. No runs, no hits, no errors.

Second inning, New York: Kelly hit a home run into the left field stand, with the count three and two. Terry followed with a sharp single over second. Wilson struck out for the first out. Jackson walked. Gowdy hit into a fast double play, Peckinpaugh to Harris to Judge. One run, two hits, no errors.

Second inning, Washington: Goslin went out, Jackson to Terry. Judge walked. He was the first Senator to reach the paths. Bluege missed the third strike. Peckinpaugh ended the inning by flying out to Wilson. No runs, no hits, no errors.

Third inning, New York: Nehf was thrown out by Johnson. Lindstrom breezed. Frisch made the third hit of the Giants off Johnson. With Young at bat, the Fordham flash was caught off second by a lightning peg, Ruel to Peckinpaugh.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 4—Washington waited 50 years for an American League pennant and nearly shook to death for three days before a world series but her big day arrived. Under a blanket of haze and fog that had all the looks and feel of London the city awoke today and crouched for the running crash to the ball park where their Washington Senators and the New York Giants meet in the first game of the series.

It was not until this morning, when Commissioner Landis, the big boss of baseball, repeated for the 'steenth time that the series was on, and that Ban Johnson and Barney Dreyfuss could not stop the show, even with a bunch of marines, that Washington became satisfied that it was not to lose what the city had waited a lifetime for.

The Senators were favorites in the betting to win the first game but the betting was slow on the entire series. It was generally believed that Arthur Nehf would pitch the first game and that Heinie Groh would not be able to play third base for the Giants.

Young Buck Harris, the Washington manager, said he would pitch Walter Johnson and would play his regular team.

Club officials said a crowd of 38,000 was certain for today and tomorrow's games.

"We've sold every seat in the park and we are quite certain that the tickets will be used. We could have sold twice as many if we had a place to put the fans," Clarke Griffith, president of the Washington club, said.

Headed by President Coolidge, practically the entire official family of Washington will occupy the box seats.

Vets Must Serve Country in Peace President Says

By United Press

WASHINGTON, Oct. 4.—At the dedication of the First Division Monument here today President Coolidge extolled the services of American soldiers in the World War and re-outlined his attitude towards the bonus, the Constitution, courts, government ownership, and the League of Nations.

He called on American veterans to serve their country as vigorously in peace as they had in war.

"I am well aware that it is impossible to maintain in peace the same exalted spirit of patriotism that exists in the time of war," he said, "and yet although it may be in a less degree the country has need of devotion to the same ideals."

Odd Fellows Will Visit New Home in Pittsburg Sunday

Odd Fellows of Connellsville and their families will form a caravan to Pittsburg Sunday for the purpose of visiting the new orphans' home on the Northside. The caravan, in which there are expected to be 35 to 50 automobiles, will form in West Apple street and leave at 10 o'clock. The visitors will inspect the home, mingle with the inmates and attend the Christian Endeavor service in the afternoon.

Harvey L. Silcox will be in charge of the trip. Mayor Charles C. Mitchell will lead the procession.

F. C. Lancaster, formerly of Connellsville, is superintendent of the home.

Salvation Army To Get Proceeds Of Fireworks

In was announced this morning that all the proceeds from the fireworks display to be held at Fayette Field tonight, over the expenses, would be donated to the Salvation Army, now preparing a drive for funds.

The fireworks display is being given in celebration of the feast of St. Amaro by the S.. Amato Society of the St Rita's Italian Catholic Church, which event was observed last Sunday and Monday. Inclement weather, however, prevented the display Monday night and it was postponed. Now it has been decided that all net receipts will go to the Salvation Army. The display will be at 9 o'clock.

Tomorrow Rally Day At Christian Church

Tomorrow will be Rally Day at the Christian Church. Especially are efforts being turned toward the Bible school, in which Superintendent B M Swartzwelder has set the goal at 800.

The attendance of every member on the roll is the aim of the officers. The pastor, Rev C W Buckner, has been busy arousing interest.

PUBLIC IMPORTANCE OF INDIAN CREEK VALLEY WATER CASE VERY GREAT

But It Is Controlled by the Fact That the Stream Has Been Polluted and the Principle That This Creates an Enjoinable Nuisance if the Public Uses the Water—Plaintiff Companies Acted Entirely Within Their Lawful Corporate Rights.

SAYS STATE SUPREME COURT IN POINTING OUT ERRORS OF LOWER COURT

The decision of the State Supreme Court in the Indian Creek Valley water case was made upon an appeal taken from the decree of the Court of Common Pleas of Fayette County on eight suits in equity. On one appeal the Pennsylvania Railroad Company was the appellant. The defendants were: Sagamore Coal Company, Melcroft Coal Company, Oneida Coal Mining Company, Indian Creek Coal & Coke Company, Stader Coal Company, Rogers Coal Company, Springfield Coal & Coke Company, Crooked Creek Coal Mining Company, H. I. Fisher, trading as Indian Creek Valley Coal Company; George Warrick, C. S. Pore and Howard Speicher, trading as Warrick Coal Company; John I. Rogers, trading as Indian Creek Coal Company; Mill Run Coal Company; Charles P. Newell, George W. Campbell, Samuel T. Steele and Charles H. Brooks, trading as Campbell Coal Company; Sutlick Coal Company, Pennie-Bryner Coal Company, John H. Prinkey, Rice-Wilkins Coal Company, John W. Berger, Indian Ridge Coal Company Arthur Seneff, trading as Laurel Run Coal Company; W. E. Rice and James J. Daugherty, trading as Rice & Dougherty; Ralph Ritenour, George McMillian, William E. Rice, Simon S. Snyder, Silcox Coal Company, Nebo Coal Mining Company, Romney Coal Mining Company, Edward H. Wingrove, Ida May Wingrove, H. L. Echart, J. C Daugherty and E. W. Austin, trading as Wingrove Coal Company.

On each of the other seven appeals the defendants were the same. On one the Dunbar Water Supply Company was the appellant. On one the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, as intervening plaintiff in the court below, was appellant. On another the Commonwealth was joint appellant with the Mountain Water Supply Company and the Pennsylvania Railroad Company; on another the Commonwealth joined with the Westmoreland Water Company. On still another appeal the Commonwealth was the sole appellant. The Mountain Water Supply Company and the Westmoreland Water Company were the sole appellants on two cases.

The opinion of the Supreme Court was rendered by Justice Schaffer. Through the courtesy of W. B. McCabb, general superintendent of the Mountain Water Supply Company, The Courier is enabled to present the full text of the opinion which follows:

"The Commonwealth, and the other complainants in those cases, appeal from the dismissal of their bills in equity, through which they seek an injunction against defendants, to prevent the discharge, by them of acid mine waters into Indian Creek, in Fayette county. This stream is approximately 22 miles long, with a drainage area of about 130 square miles, and on it, at a point below defendant's mines, one of complainants, the Mountain Water Supply Company, has constructed a dam with a capacity of 251,000,000 gallons of water, and a reservoir capable of holding 6,500,000 gallons.

"The discussion of the cases, both on oral argument and in the exhaustive briefs filed by able attorneys on both sides, took a wide range. In the view we take of it, the controversy compacts itself within closer bounds than it had in the minds of counsel, and although its public importance is very great, it is controlled by one fact and a single equitable principle—the fact that the stream has been polluted and the principle that this creates an enjoinable nuisance if the public uses the water.

"We do not deem it necessary to fully investigate and determine the powers and the effect of certain corporate acts of the plaintiff water companies, to which counsel have given great attention, further than to outline some of the steps which were taken. The Mountain Water Supply Company is incorporated under the 18th clause of the second part of section 2 of the Act of April 29, 1874, P. L. 73, 74, as amended by the Act of May 2, 1889, P. L. 253, 'for the storage, transportation and furnishing of water, with the right to take rivulets and land and erect reservoirs for holding water for manufacturing and other purposes, and for the creation, establishing, furnishing, transmission and using of water power therefrom.' For its corporate purposes, it appropriated, by resolution, the waters of Indian Creek, as well as the necessary lands, for the construction of dams, reservoirs and rights of way for the laying of pipes. It settled with the owners of the land appropriated and with the lower riparian owners on the stream. This company was created by the Pennsylvania Railroad Company in order to provide a sufficient supply of pure water for use in operating its trains. The railroad company has constructed and maintains a system of water facilities to conduct the water from the reservoirs and lines of the Mountain company, and to store it in small reservoirs, to be available when needed for its locomotives. This system of water facilities, maintained and used by the railroad company, comprises 131 miles of pipe lines, with 10 reservoirs and four stand pipes. The cost of its installation by the water company and the railroad company was in excess of $4,000,000.

"The Dunbar Water Supply Company is incorporated under the 9th clause of the second part of section 2 of the Corporation Act of 1874, P. L. 73, and its supplements, for the purpose of supplying water to the public in Dunbar Township, Fayette County. After incorporation, by resolution, it appropriated the waters of Indian Creek at the reservoir of the Mountain company. It has also appropriated rights of way necessary for the construction of pipe lines. When the improvements were completed by the two water companies, the railroad company, under the authority of the Act of April 22, 1905, P. L. 264, authorizing 'railroad companies of this Commonwealth, in order to secure an adequate supply of water for their corporate purpose to acquire, hold, dispose of, and guarantee the stock and securities of water companies,' purchased and acquired their entire capital stock.

"The Westmoreland Water Company was incorporated September 24, 1885, as a public water company, likewise under the 9th clause of the second part of section 2 of the Act of April 29, 1874, P. L. 73, and its supplements. Its earlier corporate designation was the Westmoreland Water Company of Ludwick borough. At the time it was chartered seven other companies were created for other districts of Westmoreland county, these municipal divisions being Greensburg and adjacent boroughs and townships. In the year 1901, each of those eight companies adopted resolutions appropriating a fractional interest in the waters of Indian Creek at a point near its confluence with the Youghiogheny River and below the dam of the Mountain company, the sum of the appropriations representing the entire flow of the stream. Following this, each of these companies filed a bill in equity against the Mountain company seeking to restrain the latter from diverting the water. This litigation was settled by the execution of a contract between the parties to the several suits, which provided for the furnishing of water by the Mountain company to the other companies. Subsequently the name of the Westmoreland Water Company of Ludwick Borough was changed to Westmoreland Water Company, and it purchased the property and franchises of the other companies which had been created contemporaneously with it.

"The resolutions appropriating the waters of Indian Creek by the companies which subsequently were aggregated into the Westmoreland company, were adopted before any of the defendants, with one exception, (and he owning but a small acreage) became the owners or lessees of the tracts of coal which they are now engaged in mining. At the time of those appropriations, and when the dam of the Mountain company was built, in 1905, there was no injurious pollution of the stream, there then had been no commercial development of the coal. There were, however, a number of small country pits in operation, supplying coal in limited quantities to residents in the Indian Creek Valley, from the operation of which no injury had resulted to the waters of the stream.

"Defendants operate mines on Indian Creek, and the drainage from them greatly contaminated with acid, flows into the stream, above the dam of the Mountain company, and pollutes it. The court below on this subject said: 'There is no denial in the evidence of the fact that the drainage of the mine water from the mines of the defendants into Indian Creek will injure the waters of the stream for both domestic and industrial uses. That was conceded throughout the trial of the case.'

"Plaintiffs allege that the drainage of the mine water into the creek creates a nuisance. Defendants claim a right to so drain it and that this right is one of property, of which they cannot be deprived without due process of law and without compensation being first made or secured to them.

"After the filing of bills in equity by the water companies and the railroad company to enjoin the flow of the mine water into the stream, a petition of more than 1,700 persons was presented to the Attorney General, requesting, in the public interest, his intervention in the proceedings, and permission was given

Brookhart Rules Self Out of Party

DES MOINES, Ia., Oct. 4.—The Iowa Republican Central Committee yesterday decided that Senator Smith W. Brookhart had ruled himself out of the Republican rank when he denounced President Coolidge and Charles G. Dawes, Republican nominees for president and vice president.

"The committee itself did not directly declare Senator Brookhart out of the party, but stated that his statements of the last few days 'is a repudiation of and a bolt from the Republican party.'"

Electoral Vote of Utah Will Be Given Coolidge, Canvass of State Shows

Takes a Real Upheaval to Upset Conservative Republicans in Mormon State.

TARIFF A VITAL QUESTION

Among the People Who Feel Need of Protection for Wool, Lead and Sugar; Democrats Veering to LaFollette; Mormons Are Not Radicals.

By DAVID LAWRENCE
Copyright, 1924, by The Courier.

OGDEN, Utah, Oct. 4.—This is one of the two states which stood the gaff in 1912 and stood loyally by Taft as against Roosevelt, so it would take a real upheaval to upset the conservative Republican strength here.

While Senator LaFollette has many friends in this state, principally those who think he is a progressive, the votes to be cast for the Wisconsin senator are ordinarily Democratic, so that a plurality for Calvin Coolidge, if not a straight majority, seems assured. The protective tariff and Reed Smoot are two institutions in Utah and the people do not appear disposed to disturb either. As one prominent Democrat expressed it, "What doubt can there be about Utah so long as wool, lead and sugar need protection?"

So much does Utah feel the need of a protective tariff that here as in Wyoming, the Democrats can make no headway unless they too come out for protection of home industries. And with Mr. Smoot, chairman of the all important Senate Finance Committee, the industrial chieftains and farmers feel doubly protected. They will need it as there may be a drive against the tariff in the next couple years if the insurgents and Democrats continue their coalition in Congress.

But while the tariff is a vital question in Utah there are other reasons why this state is conservative. The Mormon people are not radicals. They believe in progress but they do not want to chance an uncertainty for a certainty. In 1916 Utah went Democratic by a substantial majority. The peace sentiment was an influential factor but basically the people of Utah were satisfied with the administration in power and did not clamor for a change.

In 1920, as the vicissitudes of war developed an era of economic readjustment, Utah joined the general clamor for change in the belief that things might grow better. The reconstruction period has left Utah with some scars but by and large there is a steady improvement in agriculture as well as mining, and precisely because the curve of improvement is upward there is little disposition here to swap horses in midstream.

Talking with various leaders here one gets the impression that the status quo will be maintained so far as Utah is concerned no matter what the rest of the nation does. The campaign thus far has excited little interest but that is always the case until the last half of October. The gubernatorial race offers opportunity for an upset, however, as the Democratic nominee, George Dern, has the support of the LaFollette group. It will be an interesting test of strength incidentally, for if a Republican is elected governor of Utah it will have to be by a majority of votes cast.

A landslide for Coolidge in this state would help the state Republican ticket and the Republican managers really look for it. The President is not the popular figure that Taft or Harding or even Wilson was in the state, but the people have come to regard Calvin Coolidge as a safe, sane man, utterly honest and conscientious. That kind of a public servant can as a rule count on the support of Utah, if he is in office as against the pleas of another candidate. In other words, all things being equal the party in power is the favorite and it takes a real issue to produce a change in Utah's electoral vote.

NEW BRIDGE AT GRATZTOWN PLACED IN TWO MINUTES

A girder bridge over Sewickley creek at Gratztown on the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad, was shifted into position Thursday, with no delay to traffic. Just two minutes' time was required. Fifteen minutes later the track had been connected and a train passed over.

The bridge was placed under the westbound track. Next week a similar section will be placed under the eastbound track.

The section weighed about 175,000 pounds.

Every preparation had been made for pushing the big steel structure into position. As it went into place the old bridge was forced out.

Pheasants to Be Kept at Scottdale Over the Winter

Special to The Courier.

SCOTTDALE, Oct. 4.—"Shorty" McKee, as his friends of Browntown know him, will next winter keep the 48 pheasants received Wednesday by the Mount Pleasant Hunting and Fishing Association at his home here. Last year the association received 65 birds along the middle of September and they were kept at the McKee home over the winter months.

The birds received last year were not nearly so thrifty looking as those received this year. They were fed more than 600 pounds of scratch feed, besides corn and other green food. But when spring came and time to liberate the birds, Mr. McKee had every one in good trim, while others that had kept birds lost as many as 15 of their flocks. Mr. McKee was complimented on their condition. He says that this year's birds are little more than half grown and much better looking than those received last year.

William Henry, Retired Farmer of Scullton, Dies

William Henry, 77 years old, a retired farmer, well known in Connellsville, died Friday at his home near Scullton, just across the line in Fayette county. He had been ill for weeks. A number of relatives live in Connellsville where Mr. Henry had often visited. He is survived by his wife, Joan, and the following children: Milton, at home; George, near home; John, Rogers Mill; Rebecca, at home, and Mrs. Ellen Moore of Barrenvale.

The funeral service will be held at the church at Scullton tomorrow. The funeral party will leave the home at 10 o'clock.

85 Called for Sentence, Mostly Liquor Violations

A long line of defendants waited in court before Judge E. H. Reppert today as District Attorney E. D. Brown and his staff prepared to clear up cases hanging over since the June term of court. Eighty-five persons were to be sentenced the largest number of liquor violations.

The heaviest penalty was imposed on Mike Besley who was fined $1,000 and given two years to the workhouse, with a provision that if fine and costs are paid the prison sentence will be reduced to 10 months. Most of the names on the list were of foreigners.

Child Injured By Automobile

The six-year-old daughter of Joseph May of Morrell avenue was injured Friday when she was run down by an automobile while on her way to the Crawford School. The little girl's leg was badly bruised.

The child, according to reports, was crossing Seventh street at its intersection with West Crawford avenue. Joe Chapman was turning into Seventh street and as he did so the girl stepped in the path of the machine, which was moving slowly.

Looking for Girl Runaways.

Police here are on the lookout for two young girls of Johnstown, who run away from their homes there. Their names are Dorothy Palmer and Marion Room, each 17 years old. The former weighs about 118 pounds and has sandy hair and blue eyes. The latter weighs about 100 pounds has dark bobbed hair and large black eyes.

Undergoes Operation.

Charles Graves of Smock underwent an operation for appendicitis at the Connellsville State Hospital this morning.

Fairchance to Have New Reservoir

Fairchance is planning a new reservoir. A state official made an inspection of the proposed site last week. The estimated cost of the proposed dam is between $38,000 and $40,000. The reservoir is to hold about 1,000,000 gallons of water to be obtained from the Trexler Water Company.

The official, Mr. Wickerman, a representative of the Department of Health at Harrisburg, George Porter of an engineering company of Pittsburg and the Fairchance borough council inspected the site. Samples of the water were taken to Harrisburg for analysis.

G. D. Hugus, Retired Engineman, Honored By Fellow Employes

On Thursday evening, October 2, the home of retired Engineman G. D. Hugus, Park avenue, Scottdale, was invaded by fellow employes and their wives from Greensburg, Youngwood, Mount Pleasant, Scottdale and Everson as a surprise in honor of his being retired on the honor roll of the Pennsylvania Railroad. W. G. Mackey, conductor of the Everson shifter, the run on which Mr. Hugus last worked, had charge of the ceremonies. Henry S. McIntyre, retired engineman of Greensburg, made the address of the evening.

D. D. Bryar made a short address and presented Mr. Hugus with a fine leather traveling bag and a handsome mantel clock. Short addresses were also made by W. H. Walker, Samuel Longanecker, W. S. Cox and D. T. Pool. A quartet composed of John Vallance, O. A. Rush, D. T. Pool and A. O. Porter furnished music for the occasion, accompanied on the piano by Miss Norma Keller. Miss Blossom Pahel gave several readings. Refreshments were served.

The following were present: Henry S. McIntyre, Mr. and Mrs. E. D. Bryar, Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Cox, D. T. Pool and niece, Miss Norma Keller, T. E. Armstrong, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph H. Pahel and daughter, Blossom, Mr. and Mrs. H. R. Kuhns, E. D. Snider and son, David, Mr. and Mrs. H. M. Tri-State Candy Corn Roast.

The employes of the Tri-State Candy Company held a corn roast on the Buttermore farm on the Springfield Pike last evening where more than 150 members of the company and friends spent an enjoyable evening. Albert Ringler was the toastmaster for the occasion. A quartet composed of Misses Alberta Blocker and Margaret Pigman and Harry Donnelly and Carl Fox sang. An eight-piece mandolin orchestra furnished the music. Miss Margaret Gettings sang several solos. J. A. Richards of Somerset received a prize for being the only salesman "not loafing on the job," while William Percy of East Patterson avenue was presented with a prize for "never telling his wife a lie." Miss Catherine Cole was given a prize for being the best looking girl. Harry Donnelly was the "best looking man." Mr. Percy was in charge of the arrangements and was capably assisted by Misses Catherine Cole, Martha Sandusky and Elizabeth O'Brien, Joseph Carlton and Benjamin Cope. The grove where the corn roast was held was lighted with jack-lanterns and a huge bonfire was made. Late in the course of the festivities Mr. Fox, who is superintendent of the shipping department, called all employes about the fire and thanked them for their co-operation.

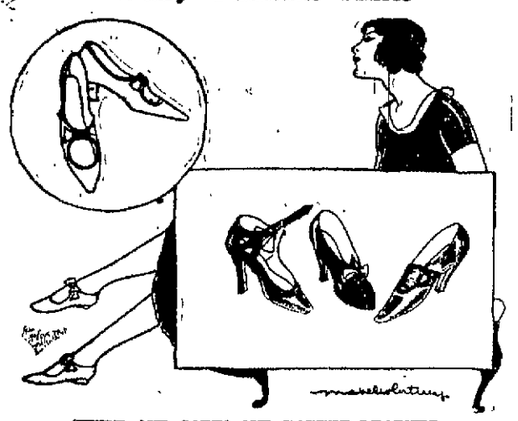
Baptist Aid Society.

The Ladies' Aid Society of the First Baptist Church held its regular monthly business meeting last evening in the church with Mrs. J. D. Percy and Mrs. H. C. Humbert hostesses. The meeting was largely attended. The president, Mrs. V. E. Long, led the devotional service. A fine report was given by the chairman, Mrs. E. W. Hoavner. A report was given from the visiting committee. During the business session, plans were made for a Hallowe'en party and gingerbread sale at the home of Mrs. E. E. Coleman on Tuesday evening, October 23. Plans for future work were discussed. The next meeting which will be November 7 will feature the "traveling basket." The hostesses will be Mrs. John Larue and Mrs. M. F. Calden.

Johnson-Hastings.

Miss Florence L. Johnson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Johnson of Fayette City, and David F. Hastings of Pittsburg, were united in marriage by Rev. George A. Long, pastor of the United Presbyterian Church of Pittsburg on Wednesday, at the parsonage.

Daily Fashion Hints



SUEDE AND SATIN AND PATENT LEATHER

All offer attractions for m'lady. The pair that are worn are of soft brown suede with low heel, cut out sides and a bow. Also of suede are the slippers in the circle. They are trimmed with a buckle effect of bronzed beads. In the lower rectangle, from left to right, black satin, black patent leather and black satin with suede are the materials used. The slipper furtherest right is black satin with suede for the buckle-like instep ornament. It has elastic in the front to insure a trim fit.

UKE CLUB HAS FEAST AFTER CONCERT SERIES

After members of the Republican Girls' Ukulele Club had covered the city for several hours last night singing and playing in an effort to arouse interest in registration, they were served a spaghetti supper at the home of Mrs. Thomas R. Francis in East Apple street, provided by Lawrence E. Cuneo of the Connellsville Macaroni Company. Besides the members of the "Uke" Club, 16 of whom were out, in four automobiles, there were four young men with banjos. The club covered all parts of the city and played at the Baltimore & Ohio station at 11:30 o'clock as Train No. 18 pulled in.

Tuesday night the club will play at a meeting of the Civic League.

Unity Fraternity.

The regular semi-monthly meeting of the Unity Fraternity will be held at the club rooms in North Pittsburg street, Monday evening. The meeting will be called at 8 o'clock and it is requested that every member be present, as important business will be discussed, including plans for a Hallowe'en dance.

Mrs. J. S. Garletts 56.

A delightful surprise dinner was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Jacob S. Garletts yesterday in honor of Mrs. Garletts fifty-sixth anniversary. The dinner was served on the lawn. The table was beautifully decorated with flowers. The birthday cake was decorated with fifty-six candles. Healthy Mothers Have Healthy Children

Harrisburg, Pa.—"As a tonic and nervine Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is all that could be desired, but it is even more than that for it relieves the expectant mother of every distress and weakness and also sick stomach. I have taken Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription both before and after motherhood and not only have I personally been strengthened and relieved of the above mentioned weaknesses, but each and every one of my children proved that Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription had been of benefit to them also."—Mrs. Kathryn Baxter, 317 Hamilton St.

Why not get this Prescription today from your druggist, or write Dr. Pierce, President of the Invalids' Hotel at Buffalo, N. Y., for free medical advice, or send 10c for a trial pkg. of tablets.

No Fire Prevention Observance Arranged

No plans for the observance of Fire Prevention Week have been announced in Connellsville. Chief William E. DeBolt of the Fire Department, in considering possible plans, has taken no definite steps yet.

"Fire Prevention" will be the topic before the Kiwanis Club at its weekly luncheon on Wednesday. No speaker for the occasion has been announced, but it is possible a fire representative will be here.

First Baby Is Girl.

Word was received here today of the birth of a daughter, the first in the family, to Mr. and Mrs. Melvin E. Light at their Toledo, Ohio, home. Mrs. Light before her marriage, was Miss Alice McKevitt of this place.

The Result of Specialization In Refining ONE Crude

An unbiased oil authority and editor publishes the statement that the best refiners today, the refiners making the highest quality lubricants, are independent refiners in Western Pennsylvania who have had years of experience refining one particular grade of crude—paraffin base crude. He states that they are able to obtain quality and uniformity because they do not take in all kinds and all grades of crudes.

The Freedom Oil Works Company, an independent refinery, was established in 1879. This concern, since its inception, has refined Pennsylvania Grade Crude. Freedom Perfect is the result of forty-five years experience and is the last word in quality and is uniformly perfect.

Freedom Perfect is sold by dealers who recognize the growing demand for this perfect lubricant. It is used by every motorist who wants the most in motor oils made from 100% Pennsylvania Crude.

Ask for FREEDOM PERFECT by name. Buy it where you see the FREEDOM sign and FREEDOM Recommendation Chart displayed. Ask for the free booklet "Oil Facts."

Freedom Cylinder and Engine Oils for factory use are of the same high quality as Freedom Motor Oils.

FIRST BAPTIST—E. H. Stevens, minister. Bible school, 9:45. Lesson story on the life of Jesus. If we know Jesus Christ better would we not love Him more? It is the object of the Sunday school to present the claims of Jesus, what He said, what His message means to us of our day. If we accept Him as our Saviour all will be well with us. Do we believe this? We can help our fellows in many ways. But the greatest benefit you can confer on any man is to bring him to Jesus Christ. Morning worship, 11. Would you not be interested in hearing what 27,000 boys said about the church? Are you a good companion to boys? What is your example to the boys you know. Evening service 7:30. The fifth sermon on the Sermon on the Mount. Read it. It is about making oaths. The idea is that you make your word, wha you say you will do, as good as your bond. Why not always tell the truth? Get the habit of truth telling. The Baptists of the Monongahela Association, 30 churches, will hold their annual meeting with the Mount Moriah Church, Smithfield, October 6, 7 and 8. Many delegates will go from the local church.

No Vibration At Any Engine Speed

Willys-Knight with Lanchester Balancer ushers in a new day of enjoyable motoring.

The Willys-Knight is a revelation to motorists. It gives them a new conception of riding ease, a velvet smoothness of operation that surprises and delights.

Much was expected of the car. The ten years it has been in production have been years of progressive leadership. Willys-Knight conquered noise with its quiet sleeve-valve engine,—conquered engine deterioration, conquered carbon and valve trouble, conquered the problems of lubrication, clutch, steering and every detail of mechanical construction. It seemed to approach the pinnacle of possibility.

But Willys-Knight still advances. This year it tops its record with another triumph—it solves the universal problem of engine vibration. The Lanchester Balancer, which eliminates vibration, introduces car owners to a new comfort and pleasure in driving.

The Willys-Knight with Lanchester Balancer awaits your inspection.

to intervene in the name of the Commonwealth.

"Defendants invoke the rule laid down in Pennsylvania Coal Company v. Sanderson, 113 Pa. 126, as sustaining the right to drain their mines into the stream. Over that decision and its applicability to the facts in the pending cases, the controversy was waged before the chancellor and before us. He held the ruling there made determines those proceedings in defendants' favor. We are of opinion that the Sanderson case does not control the ones in hand. The chancellor further concluded that the several water companies had not appropriated the waters of Indian Creek for public use; that the Mountain company did not possess the power of eminent domain, and that neither the Dunbar company nor the Westmoreland company had exercised that power; that as there had not been a fully completed exercise of it, there had been no appropriation of the waters of the creek for public use, and that as the waters had not been legally so appropriated, there was no public interest which warranted the intervention of the commonwealth; invoking the rule of the Sanderson case he dismissed the bills.

"Whether the Mountain company has the power of eminent domain or whether the Dunbar company and the Westmoreland company possessing it, lawfully exercised it, is of no consequence. These cases do not lie within the narrow realm of legal formalities. This stream of pure water (one of the very few unpolluted ones in the section of the state where it is located) was impounded, primarily, for the purpose of furnishing uncontaminated water, to supply the motive power which is essential to the operation of one of the great railroad systems of the country. This primary purpose having been met, a large part of the surplus water, approximately 3,000,000 gallons per day, is being taken, by agreement between the Mountain company and the Westmoreland company, from the reservoir of the former and supplied by the latter to 75,000 people in thirteen municipal divisions of the Commonwealth for domestic uses. This being the fact, it is idle to say that the water is not being devoted to public use.

"It would never do to permit a screen of effete legal formalism to be raised to shut out the view of what actually exists in such a situation as here confronts us. It could not be averred, with wisdom and truth, that there is no public interest warranting the Commonwealth's intervention, when the water supply of such a large number of persons is involved. Nor do we think it can properly be held that the use of the water by the railroad company is not a public one. The water is devoted by it to the furnishing of power to transport the public; without water uncontaminated by acid, the railroad could not be operated. If authority were needed for the proposition that the water furnished to the Railroad company is for a public use, it can be found in Bland v. Tipton Water Company, 223 Pa. 285, 289, where it is said: 'In daily furnishing to the engines of the Railroad company 360,000 gallons of water in that township, the water company is not exercising a mere right, but performing a duty, for the railroad company, in the operation of its road in said township is to be regarded as a part of the public therein.'

"The first error into which the court below seems to have fallen was in holding, that to constitute a public use of the water it must be taken under the right of eminent domain, and that there had been no exercise of this power by any of the plaintiff companies. The reason given for the conclusion that the Westmoreland company and the Dunbar company had not exercised the power of eminent domain, which each of them possesses, was because the resolutions which they adopted 'were not followed by entry upon the ground and because no compensation ever was made or secured to defendants or their predecessors in title.' In view of the agreement made by these two companies with the Mountain company, which had the right under the act authorizing its incorporation to store and furnish the water, nothing further was required to be done by them.

"So far as the defendants are concerned, no compensation was due to them, because as upper riparian owners they were deprived of nothing by the appropriation of the water below them. The chancellor would also seem to have overlooked the rule, that settlement by an eminent domainer, with one whose property has been appropriated, is equivalent to the full and complete exercise of the power of eminent domain; Bonisburg Water Company v. State College Water Company, 240 Pa. 198; Hendler v. Lehigh Valley Railroad Company, 209 Pa. 256; 2 Lewis on Eminent Domain (3rd Ed. 1909) 845. One of plaintiff companies, the Westmoreland, and those affiliated with it, started proceedings to condemn the waters of the stream, their right to do so was challenged by the Mountain company, whose interests in the creek were not only those acquired in pursuance of its charter, but those of a riparian owner as well. These proceedings culminated in a settlement and agreement for the taking of the water; this was the same as though they had been carried through to a finality.

"However a corporation possessing the power of eminent domain acquires its rights, whether by purchase or condemnation, the rights acquired are the same; there is no magic in getting them under the power of eminent domain. Formal entry is not, as the court below seemed to think, requisite. The day for going through ceremonies in the law of property has passed; such symbolism as that involved in the handing over of a twig or clod of earth to indicate the passing of title is in the limbo of things well nigh forgotten. In the very recent case of Palmer Water Company v. Lehighton Water Supply Company, 280 Pa. 492, we determined, that a water company actually located on a stream, and supplying water therefrom to the public, should be confirmed in its rights to so furnish it, as against the claim to the entire flow of the stream of another water company, subsequently created, even though the prior locating company had not strictly complied with the law in appropriating the water. The language of Mr. Justice Kephart in that case has strong pertinence to the ones in hand. (p. 498) 'Here we have the Lehighton company, occupying the upper stream from which it supplied the public for some years before the Palmer Water Company existed, thrown off the stream because its board of directors failed to go through a form to appropriate the stream, though every other act of the company was consistent with the proper performance of its duties and obligations resting on it as a public servant.' We there reiterated long ago used language of our predecessors in saying 'the domestic uses of water are its natural and primary ones.'

"The lower court's ruling so far as the Mountain company is concerned, if carried to its logical conclusion, would mean that that company can take the water only as a riparian owner can. The legislature, however, in endowing that company with power, indicated otherwise, and granted it prerogatives much beyond those of a riparian owner, but, even if it were nothing more than a riparian owner, having acquired the rights of all the lower ones on the stream, it could divert the water and furnish it, as it is furnishing it, to the two other water companies, and defendants as upper riparian owners could not complain.

"In their printed brief, counsel for appellees 'concede without hesitation that if the Mountain Water Company had the right to take the water from Indian Creek, it makes no difference how it carries or transports it, if it is devoted to a public use.' The Mountain company has the right to take the water from the creek under the express terms of its charter, and no one could gainsay this right except lower riparian owners. As it has acquired all such interests, its right to take the water cannot be successfully challenged. The water which it has the right to take is devoted to public use in two aspects, in that it goes to the public through the Westmoreland company for domestic consumption and to the Pennsylvania Railroad Company for use by the latter in connection with the public service which it performs.

"The court seems to have relied for its determination that there is no public use of the waters of Indian Creek, on Commonwealth v. Yost, 197 Pa. 171. If that case decided, under a state of facts at all comparable to those before us, what the chancellor conceived it to decide, it would not be followed by us now; but it does not determine that where a water company has acquired the right to the waters of a stream, by other than condemnation title, its only rights are those of a riparian proprietor and therefore private. That proceeding was a prosecution for committing a public nuisance in polluting a stream from which the York Water Company obtained water. There was no evidence that the water company had any right to divert the water or appropriate it for any purpose save as a riparian owner. It was held under this state of facts that the nuisance was not shown to be a public one, and hence a conviction could not be sustained. It was pointed out in the opinion that 'If the public have a right to receive pure water through the agency of a corporation legally authorized to take it from a stream, he who pollutes it offends against the public.'

"In the pending cases, the three water companies have the right to take the waters of the stream, to a greater degree than would ordinary riparian owners, and the only deficiency in their right which the trial court points out is the lack of the fully completed exercise of the power of eminent domain by the Westmoreland and Dunbar companies (we are passing the question whether the Mountain company possessed the power at all). If in Commonwealth v. Yost, it had appeared that the water company acquired the right to divert the water by purchase from all the lower riparian owners, it certainly would not have been held that its use of the water was not a public use and the nuisance not a public one.

"Water companies incorporated since the Act of April 13, 1905, P. L. 152, have no power of eminent domain. If the lower court's view that water companies can be guaranteed the purity of their supply only by using eminent domain proceedings to acquire it be correct, then such companies as have been called into existence since the passage of that act are at the mercy of any mine which might be opened along their source of supply.

"Having determined for the reasons to which we have referred that there was no public use of the water, the court below proceeded to apply to the controversy the rule of the Sanderson case. As we have shown, the conclusion reached that there was no public use of the water was fallacious. We have, therefore, a situation where the waters of a stream are devoted to public use. Does the Sanderson case apply under these circumstances? That litigation did not involve the rights of the public to the waters of streams in any sense. What was affected by the pollution of the stream was the private concern of that plaintiff. The case was determined on the balancing of the 'necessities of a great public industry' and a 'mere personal inconvenience.'

"It was said: 'The community does not complain on any grounds. The plaintiff's grievance is for a mere personal inconvenience and we are of opinion that mere private personal inconvenience arising in this case and under such circumstances must yield to the necessities of a great public industry, which although in the hands of a private corporation subserves a great public interest. To encourage the development of a great natural resource of a country, trifling inconvenience to particular persons must give way to the necessities of a great community.' No language used in that opinion can be tortured into an implication that the waters of the commonwealth can be polluted by its mines, where the public is affected as it is here. It has always been under our law a nuisance to pollute a stream from which the public gets its supply of water: Barclay v. Commonwealth, 25 Pa. 503; McCallum v. Germantown Water Company, 54 Pa. 40; Commonwealth v. Emmers, 221 Pa. 298.

"Such an injury as was shown in the Sanderson case was held to be unredressable where the public is not involved. The rule there laid down is in consonance with that applied in many instances, where a condition is not held to be a nuisance which annoys or offends a single individual but which would be outlawed if the public were complaining.

"So far as the use of the water is concerned it matters not how the public gets it, whether as customers of a water company or as riparian owners having the right to its domestic use. If there were a large number of riparian users on the stream in question, the public nuisance by pollution would be just the same. It is the use of the water by many people that makes its public use in applying the nuisance doctrine, not the fact of how the water is taken from the stream for their use, whether in the mains of a water company or by them in buckets.

"The error of the trial judge in this case was the same as that pointed out in Commonwealth v. Russell, 172 Pa. 508, at page 520: 'Is a city as helpless to protect the water supply on which it depends as Sanderson was held to be? Does a great municipality stand on the same ground, when the water supply for its multitudes of people is under consideration, as a single property owner must stand under Sanderson v. The Coal Company? * * * Notwithstanding the name of the commonwealth had been put on the record as a plaintiff at the instance of her attorney general, and notwithstanding the conclusive evidence of the destruction of the water supply for all domestic purposes, on which the borough of Butler had been dependent for many years, the case was disposed of on the narrow ground covered by the rule in Sanderson's case. The error of the learned judge lies in this treatment of the case.' In Commonwealth v. Emmers, 221 Pa. 298, we lent our sanction to what was said by the Superior Court, 'But whether this extreme exception (in the Sanderson case) to the general rule that a riparian owner has no right to pollute the waters of a stream could prevail against the right of the public is an entirely different question.'

"We now come to the consideration of the conclusion of the trial judge that the right to drain the mine water into the stream is a property right. To reach this determination, he gave to the Sanderson case a much broader effect than it has ever before been given and overlooked how limited has been its application. It is somewhat difficult to understand why he badged the draining of the mine water into the stream as a 'property right' in the defendants, of which they cannot be deprived except upon payment being made to them. Nothing said in the Sanderson opinion warrants such conclusion, even from the standpoint of the private right involved and certainly not where public rights are at stake. No such term as a right of property was applied in that decision to the act of the mine owner in polluting the stream. He was taken out of the rule that his act was one of nuisance by the exceptional situation there existing, and it was expressly stated, that the privilege accorded to him would not be sanctioned where the public is concerned. To say that there is no public concern in the use made of the waters of a stream which are supplied to 75,000 individual consumers shocks the common understanding.

"In Sanderson's case, the court was most careful to state, 'We do not say that a case may not arise in which a stream from such pollution may not become a nuisance and that the public interests as involved in the general health and well being of the community may not require the abatement of that nuisance. This is not such a case.' The ones in hand are. The most that could be said of what was accorded to the defendant in that much controverted case is, that it was a privilege. There could not be such a thing in the law as a property right to do a wrong, unless, it was founded in prescription, which presupposes a grant, and no prescription was set up in that case. Indeed 'It is generally recognized that no right can be acquired by prescription to maintain a public nuisance. So it has been decided that there can be no prescriptive right to maintain an obstruction in the highway, or to pollute a stream to the detriment of the public;' 2 Tiffany, Real Property (2nd Ed. 1920) 2031; Owens v. Lancaster, 182 Pa. 257, 262; 2 Lewis Eminent Domain (3rd Ed. 1909) 886 note; Commonwealth v. Sisson, 189 Mass. 247 75 N. E. 619.

"Dwight Printing Company v. City of Boston, 122 Mass. 583, completely answers the claim set up by appellees of a right to pollute the stream in view of the interest of the public in it. In that case, the City of Boston had appropriated the waters of a river as part of its water supply. A petition was filed by an upper riparian owner praying for an assessment of his damages upon the ground, among others that the appropriation interfered with the petitioners' use of the water in bleaching and dyeing cloths. The Supreme Judicial Court of Massachusetts, in disposing of the plaintiff's contentions, said (p. 587-588); 'The riparian proprietors higher up still retain all their common law rights in the river, so far as they are not inconsistent with the use defined in the statute. They certainly are not prohibited from drawing water from the river for domestic purposes, or from watering cattle in it or from cutting ice. * * * Another claim, put forward by the petitioner, is that the use which it proposes to make of the water of the river in bleaching and dyeing woolen and cotton cloths must befoul the water and render it unfit for drinking purposes, and that the statute in question deprives it of that right. But it is agreed that the petitioner has acquired no such right by any grant or prescription, and it is well settled that, as a riparian proprietor merely it has no such right. An injury to the purity or quality of the water to the detriment of other riparian owners, constitutes in legal effect a wrong and invasion of private right, in like manner as a permanent obstruction or diversion of the water.'

"The title acquired by defendants, whether by grant or demise gave them no property rights in the waters of the stream save those which pertained to riparian ownership; obviously this did not include the right to pollute the stream; (Howell v. M'Coy, 3 Rawle 256; Commonwealth v. Emmers, 221 Pa. 298, 304). It could not be said that a land owner on a water course whose rights in the stream are only those of a riparian proprietor (and none other are shown in defendants), would have them enlarged to one of property in the use of the waters by the discovery or development of coal on his lands.

"Our conclusion is that defendants have no right of any kind to drain their mine waters into the stream considering the public use which is made of its waters and that their so doing constitutes a nuisance which must be restrained.

"We recognize, however, as evidently the court below also did, that the public has an indirect interest in the business of defendants, and hence, applying the principle that he who seeks equity must do equity, the decrees to be entered should require plaintiffs (other than the Commonwealth), so far as this can reasonably and legally be done, to afford defendants an opportunity to transport and dispose of the mine water of their respective mines in such a way as shall minimize the expense of so doing and the decrees, after their entry, should be enforced in the same equitable spirit. In fairness to plaintiffs it should be stated that their counsel, in oral argument at the bar of the court, expressed the willingness of their clients to thus cooperate with defendants.

"The decrees of the court below dismissing plaintiffs' several bills of complaint are reversed, the bills are reinstated, and, it is directed that the court below shall enter decrees, enjoining and restraining defendants, and each of them, from discharging, pumping or causing or permitting to flow or to be discharged, any drainage of mine water from their mines, and from the mines of each of them, into the waters of Indian Creek, or its tributaries, above the dam of the Mountain Water Supply Company, after the expiration of six months from the date of the entry of the decrees. It is further directed that defendants shall pay the costs."

Coolidge Economy Appeals To Women, Guardians of Private Purse of Nation

THRIFTY WOMEN RUNNING HOUSEHOLDS FOLLOW THE COURSE LAID DOWN FOR PUBLIC EXPENDITURES BY THE PRESIDENT

This is the second of a series of five articles by Mrs. Alvin T. Hert, vice-chairman of the Republican National Committee, and chairman of the Women's Division of that committee. Mrs. Hert discusses what she considers vital campaign issues from the women's standpoint.

BY MRS. ALVIN T. HERT

In the majority of American homes women buy the food, the clothing and the furnishings. They disburse the family income and usually they are the ones who save the money to pay life insurance, to buy homes and to educate the children.

Because women have been entrusted by the men with this great responsibility, women realize the necessity of exercising common sense in their spending.

The wise woman does not spend more than her husband earns. The woman who saves a part of the family income is a safe and sane custodian of the family funds. Women expect this same thrift, this same careful spending, to be followed by the government in the running of the nation's affairs. They like the clean cut statement of President Coolidge that:

"We can only be relieved of our present private and public burdens by refraining from private and public extravagance. We must resist private and public outlays for which there is no commensurate return. This is economy. Whatever anybody may claim or say, there is no other method by which the people can rid themselves of their tremendous financial burdens."

The woman who is happy and who makes her family happy always shows a balance on the credit side of her housekeeping books. She does not spend money until the money has been earned. Even though the family savings are small, they are nevertheless important, for they relieve the family from oppression and the feeling of a mounting burden of debt which cannot be relieved.

The same principle applies to the government. As the President stated: "The expenses of the government reach everybody. When we come to realize that the yearly expenses of all the governments in this country have reached the stupendous sum of about $7,500,000,000 we get some idea of what this means. Of this amount about $3,500,000,000 is needed by the national government and the remainder by local governments.

"I want the people of America to work less for the government and more for themselves. I want them to have the rewards of their own industry."

This followed out the pledge of the Republican platform to the the people of this country which declared firmly: "We demand and the people of the United States have the right to demand, rigid economy in government."

A policy of strict economy enforced by the Republican administration since 1921 has made possible a reduction in taxation and has enabled the government to reduce the public debt by two and one-half billion dollars.

For the year ending June 30, 1921 the government's expenditures were $5,585,500,000 and the surplus was $86,000,000. For the year just closed the government's expenses were $3,487,000,000 and the surplus exceeded $500,000 000. This was a reduction in the annual cost of government of $2,041,000,000. Taxes have been reduced wherever possible and there has been an immense saving to people everywhere.

General Charles G. Dawes, the Republican candidate for Vice President, was asked by President Harding to outline a federal budget system and to put it into effect. This he did in the most thoroughgoing, whole-hearted manner with the result that government securities have been increased in value to more than $3,000,000 and deficits have been turned into surpluses.

These are the types of men the Republicans have chosen as their candidates for the highest offices in this country. These are the men that the women of this country will support at the polls next November, for they have shown by their deeds that they are able to put into force in this country the same kind of practical economy which intelligent women practice every day in their own homes.

Fear of U. S. Crowds Keeps King Away

KING HAAKON

King Haakon, of Norway, wanted to pay a visit incognito to the United States, but the experience of his nephew, the Prince of Wales, with American crowds has caused him to banish the thought, according to Mme. Charlotte Lund, operatic soprano, who has just reached New York from Norway, where she talked with the King.

Senators Favorites As Scandal-Tainted World Series Opens

SCRANTON, Oct. 4.—Heinie Sand, Philly infielder who claimed to have been offered a bribe to throw a game to the Giants, here on burnstorming trip, today said there are still a few important details of the bribe offer that have not been made public but that these must come from Judge Landis.

"So far as I am concerned there will be nothing more said as to the bribe," Heine said.

CHICAGO, Oct. 4.—Aroused by the rebuffs of Commissioner of Baseball Landis, Ban B. Johnson, president of the American League, has announced a finish fight on Landis, Charles A. Stoneham, principal owner of the New York Giants, and John McGraw.

Johnson said he was determined to drive "corruption" out of baseball and announced he had instructed his attorneys to decide on a plan of action.

Johnson said he would not be satisfied until Landis, Stoneham and McGraw are out of the game. Likewise he wants the instant dismissal of all ball players in any way connected with crookedness in baseball.

Johnson is angry because Landis ignored his demand for cancellation of the world series in view of the confession of Jimmy O'Connell of the Giants that he tried to bribe a Philadelphia player to throw one of the games played between the two teams. Johnson declined an invitation to attend the world series games.

Harry M. McDonald of Dawson and J. F. Bork and Clyde Whipkey of Connellsville went to Washington, D. C. yesterday where they will attend the first game of the world series today. They are boosting for Washington.

100 VILLAGES IN INDIA UNDER FLOOD WATERS

By United Press.

ALLAHABAD, India, Oct. 4—Floods spreading southward from northern India had inundated 100 villages. The Jumna River has reached the walls of Delhi and the great Jumna bridge is threatened.

The entire Delhi area has been covered by the flood waters, extending as far as six miles from the banks of Jumna and tributary streams. Crops are ruined. Peasants are taking refuge in troctops.

J. F. Holland Shows His Skill in Making Anvil From Steel Rail

There is on exhibition at Crowley & Mestrezat's shoe store an anvil made from a piece of 100-lb. steel rail which shows that J. F. Holland, who fashioned it, has lost none of his cunning as a skilled machinist, even though he is well advanced in years and persists in voting the Democratic ticket.

In making the anvil Mr. Holland used only a hack saw and files, doing all the work except polishing by hand. The rail from which the anvil was made had been in use on the Baltimore & Ohio railroad for 20 years.

Rev. Buckner's Son To Pay Visit Here

Rev. George Walker Buckner, Jr., of Hastings, Neb., son of Rev. George Walker Buckner, pastor of the Christian Church of Connellsville, will pay a visit to his father and the local church, October 12, on his way home from Washington where he will attend the annual convention of the American Red Cross. Rev. Buckner is chairman of the county Red Cross organization at his home.

It is probable the visiting minister will speak at one of the services of the day here.

Simple Dress Is Milady's Choice

Prefers Little Frock That Can Be Worn All Day, Yet Look Well.

That simplicity is a difficult achievement is what most women know. The little frock that can be worn all day long and yet look well, the one-piece dress that is equally at home in the office or at lunch at some smart restaurant—this is the type of dress that seems almost impossible to find, notes a fashion writer in the Kansas City Star.

An excellent example of the type of dress that is equal to almost any occasion is one of black satin. It is cut on the becoming coat dress lines and has the new surplice neck, a line that women will welcome joyfully, it is so flattering to most figures.

The surplice collar and the side opening of the dress are cocoa brown crepe de chine. The narrow bands that outline the hem are of the same material. The scarf, without which no self-respecting frock is seen nowadays, has bands of the brown crepe de chine at either end. A small cocoa brown felt hat trimmed with three small flowers, brown stockings and black patent leather pumps complete this costume of a well dressed woman.

Plaid promises to play an important part in the winter's mode. Plaid coat dresses that are open to the waist with a plaited frill of batiste or organdie are exceedingly smart. Another little three-piece costume is of black and white wool cheviot trimmed with red braid and small white buttons. Plaids also appear in silk materials as well as in woolen ones and indeed it bids fair to be a plaid season. Surely nothing could be more attractive for the schoolgirl than the slim little one-piece dress of dark blue with a bugo hood-like cape lined with plaid.

Sleeves and Necklines on New Fall Garments

Sleeve styles for fall wear are varied, notes a correspondent in the Cleveland Plain Dealer. There is the long, close-fitting sleeve terminating in a bishop puff with a tight cuff, the gathered lower part often being of a contrasting material. Then there is the long sleeve with the fullness above the elbow, something like the old-time mushroom puff, and the long one which is wide below the elbow. Then, of course, there is the frock with no sleeves at all, but it is usually of an evening or dinner type.

Necklines, too, are a bit different. There are high collars which fasten either at the side or the front, directoire collars with frilled jabots and scarf collars which are adjusted in a variety of ways. Necklines are cut in a V or a square, or are rounded, but the bateau is seldom seen. For evening, the neckline is lower in the back than in the front, the decolletage often extending to the waistline in the back.

The cape wrap is decidedly in vogue for evening. Full or of a three-quarter length, it is developed in both fabric and fur. Street wraps are either straight of line or show a circular flare or a godet inset.

Actually, while styles in general seem not to have changed so very much, there are new features introduced which promise a decided change in a few seasons to come.

New Combs for Bobbed Hair

French combs with fine teeth have been designed for the wayward frontbobbed lock in a variety of shapes, round, square and oval. These may be had plain or encrusted with rhinestones. A practical bobbed barret is made all in a piece in a doubled serpentine curve which grasps the hair securely without catch.

AFTER AN OPERATION

Mrs. Wilke Couldn't Get Back Her Strength Until She Took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Rochester, Minnesota.—"I had a very serious operation and it seemed as if I could not get my health back after it. I suffered with pain almost constantly. My sister came to help take care of me, and she was taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for nervousness and a run-down condition. She had me try some of it, and in a very few days' time I began to feel better. In two weeks I hardly knew myself and after taking a couple of bottles more I was up and helping around, and now I am strong and healthy again and am still taking it. It is a pleasure for me to write this to you, and I hope that many other women who are suffering like I was will find out about your medicine. I will give any information I possibly can."—Mrs. James Wilke, 933 E. Center Street, Rochester, Minn.

Remember, the Vegetable Compound has a record of fifty years of service and thousands of women praise its merit, as does Mrs. Wilke.

The Shingle that never curls

Insist on

The Shingle that never curls

Shingles that never curl
— are not attacked by the weather from the under side.
— do not become an eyesore and depreciate property values.
— give lasting satisfaction.

Carey Asfaltslate Shingles have demonstrated that they do not curl, by their actual service in all parts of the country and under all climatic conditions.

They come in several weights and sizes and in a complete variety of natural fadeless slate colors: Indian red, sage green and "the aristocrat of colors" — blue-black.

It reduces the operating expense of your present car!

If you buy a Chevrolet 6% Purchase Certificate—an amount equal to 6% of all the money you spend with us for service, repairs or accessories for your present car is credited on your Certificate.

In addition to this service credit, the payments you make on the purchase certificate each week or month earn 6% interest.

This plan provides a very profitable way to offset the natural depreciation on your present car—it is a splendid investment that is absolutely safe—it enables you to have the ready money with which to buy a Chevrolet.

There are a great many unequalled advantages in this Chevrolet plan—come in and let us explain them to you in detail.

CONSTANCE TALMADGE

—in—

"The Dangerous Maid"

At the Theatres

The Paramount

"A FIGHTING HEART"—Frank Merrill, the world's greatest athlete, has finally heeded the call of the movies. His great feature, "A Fighting Heart," at the Paramount today.

The great athlete has put a punch in this feature that hitherto has never been seen on the screen. How he handles men as if they were babies is thrilling in the Nth degree.

No more perfect type than Merrill has ever been presented on the screen. The whole world knows of his remarkable achievements, and his coming to the film world is a decided gold strike for picture patrons.

"A Fighting Heart" is said to be a human tornado, and gives the great handsome athlete a wonderful opportunity to display his miraculous athletic ability. Don't miss this great screen sensation.

The Soisson

Following the theory that women hold the balance in the theatre patronage throughout the country, John M. Stahl has made his new picture, "Why Men Leave Home," at the Soisson today, a production of strong feminine appeal.

It was the belief of many that the original play of Avory Hopwood held married life up to ridicule. To suit public opinion Stahl has tempered the story to a clever satire, in which the husband and wife are alternately victorious or crestfallen through the development of the theme.

"Why Men Leave Home" is interpreted by an all-star cast, which includes: Lewis Stone, Helene Chadwick, William V. Mong, Mary Carr, Alma Bennett and Hedda Hopper.

The Orpheum

"WOMEN WHO GIVE."—Burning a house is a minor matter when the effect desired is for a motion picture. The plot of "Women Who Give," at the Orpheum, calls for the lighthouse to fall just as the fishing schooner, bearing Robert Frazer, leading man, heads for the rocks. Under the stress of the heavy storm, the lighthouse keeper (Joseph Dowling) sets fire to his house to warn the ship off the rocks. He is too late to prevent the wreck; however; but the light of the fire makes a thrilling rescue successful.

The scene was filmed in the dead of night. A large set representing a house was saturated with gasoline and then set on fire. It went up in a terrific blaze and burned with such rapidity that Director Barker was obliged to build another one. Consequently, to make sure that the house would not burn down too soon, a skeleton structure, supported by hundreds of thick beams, was erected. This time the fire lasted long enough to shoot the scenes of the wreck.

The Arcade

"NIFTIES OF BROADWAY"—Irving Lewis' "Nifties of Broadway" which will be at the Arcade Theatre, Connellsville starting October 6, has been characterized by critics everywhere as the most whimsical and fascinating review ever produced. No expense has been spared in giving the foregoing public a refreshing musical revue that will be remembered long after the company has left town. Charged with an electrical animation that blazes forth with mirth this production stands out as one of the most pretentious ever brought here. But, it is the magnetic brigade of tantalizing beauties that make this show the talk of every city. Pride too, is taken by the management in announcing that this production constitutes a cast of clever artists. Mr. Lewis himself, who is the producer and chief fun maker is capably supported by George Seldon, Kathleen Brenon, Harry Ackerman, Russ Wilson, Rose Sydell, Jr., Mickey Leeming, and Bobbie Wilson. The chorus has been characterized by one critic as $100,000 worth of beauty. Refreshing and entertaining, these girls are making their initial tour of the country, having previously adorned the studios of the best known artists of New York City.

The State

That John Philip Sousa actually gets the inspiration for a new march by marching was revealed recently by the famous bandmaster when he was discussing "Ancient and Honorable Artillery Company," the new Sousa march, which will be one of the features of his programs at the State Theatre, Uniontown, Wednesday, October 8, matinee and night. "The Ancient and Honorable Artillery Company March" was written for the famous Boston organization of that name in response to the appeal made by Governor Channing H. Cox, of Massachusetts, but it, like more than a hundred Sousa marches that have gone before, was literally written on the march.

"I do not think I ever have received the initial inspiration for a march except by marching," the famous bandmaster said recently. "Perhaps the inspiration came when I was at the head of a band, either during my days in charge of the United States Marine Band in Washington, or during the World War when I took charge of the musical activities at the Great Lakes Naval Training Station.

ANNOVNCEMENT EXTRAORDINARY

By the

Soisson Theatre

I am pleased to announce to the movie fans of Connellsville and vicinity that the Soisson Theatre has again secured the franchise of the First National Pictures.

This franchise was held before by the Soisson Theatre but was given up when I thought that the pictures did not measure up to the standard demanded by our patrons.

Now, however, the First National are making better pictures than ever. Their stars are the brightest on the movie horizon, their directors the best and they are spending enormous sums of money on every production to give movie fans the best.

Every First National Attraction booked is a new release. Not a one of them are last year's pictures. Below is a partial list of some of the pictures that will be shown at the Soisson.

ABE MARTIN — On Jobs to Fit the Fellow

ALL SET FER TH' TOMATER TEST

Prof. Alex Tanser has gone int phychology an' is workin' out a scheme whereby he kin tell what sort of a job, or profession, a feller is fitted fer. He says th trouble with th world t'day is that too many people are engaged in th wrong sort o work, an' that too many important offices are filled by fellers who'd better be plowin', or plumbin', or brick makin' or runnin a grocery, or sellin nit trees Th' professor says there is employment t' fit th peculiarities o ever' man or woman, an that th great problem 'll be t sidetrack th feller that's holdin' office, or runnin for one, or who's tryin' t sell tornado insurance, an' git him t mixin' concrete, or runnin' a street car or doin' somethin' he's cut out t' do He says th' economic gain t' th' country 'll be appallin' if his plans work out. Th' professor's scheme embraces a number o' tests. This is one o' them, th' reaction test—a feller is placed in a light tourin' car o' th' inexpensive sort an' headed down a residence street toward a school house at a rate o' 25 miles an hour. Th' object is t' see how quick he kin read a slow down sign an' translate it mentally an telegraph it t' his foot An absolutely exact contrivance which can not be auen feco ds ever second from th' time th warnin sign looms up till he puts his foot on th' brake If th' subject's mind works fast it indicates that he'd make a capital cafeteria clerk, an' if it works slow he'd make an invaluable feller at th' cashier's window of a public utility Another test is th slot machine test Th subject is given a few nickles an If he wins anything it's a sign he's lucky an 'll make a good speculator Then there's th' corn shredder test that tests out one's accuracy an' bump o caution If th' subject survives a bunch o fodder with both hands intact it shows that he's capable o' foolin' with a buzz saw an' would make an O K. plaulin' mill hand. Th' most ticklish test is th emotion try out. A dial that measures an' weighs th' heart beat is screwed t' th' arm o' th' victim an' connected up with his chest. Then th' phychologist hits him in the nose with a ripe tomater th' object bein' t' frighten or anger th' subject if possible—t' see if he angers easily. Whether he does a good or bad job o' angerin' shows up immediately on th little dial an th phychologist has a workin clew If he gits mad an excited easily his emotions are just under th skin an he'd make a poor dry goods clerk but if he's slow t blow up his emotions are in his stomach an he'd make a dandy fireman. One o' th' most ingenius tests is called th' chair test A kitchen chair an' a large soft leather hotel chair are placed in a room Th' subject is taken t' th door o this room an told t' go in an' take a chair fer a few moments while th' phychologist runs across th street for some smokin' t'backer If th subject sits down on th' kitchen chair it's quite evident he hain't lookin fer somethin' soft like smoke inspector, or consus takin', an' if he takes th' big easy hotel chair ther's no mistakin' th' fact that he's intended for somethin' easy an' remunerative, an' if he sets down in th' hotel chair an' puts his feet on th kitchen chair it's a never failin' indication that he's a born ruler o' men an' would make a painstakin' captain o hell boys, or a politician t' be reckoned with

Champion Mean Man

A wealthy man visited a school and gave an address When he was through he called a little boy up to him and said "My lad have you a purse?" 'No sir" "I'm sorry," said the rich man 'If you had I'd have given you half a dollar to put into it."

The same man was scheduled to speak there again the following month and when he came the boys were prepared for him, an empty purse lay hidden in every pair of trousers And sure enough at the end of his speech he called another boy to him Have you a purse, little man? he asked 'Yes, sir "I'm glad of that," said the speaker 'If you hadn't I should have given you half a dollar to buy one"—The Pathfinder

Select Becoming Colors When Buying Garments

In meeting new colors, there are also certain principles which can guide you in determining whether or not they will be becoming to you says the Kansas City Star The principle of the pleasing contrast to your hair eyes, and complexion is one test. The knowledge of the effect which certain colors will have on your complexion is another test.

The second test requires a more intimate knowledge of color and the effects which certain colors have upon one another. It has been stated that violet brings out the yellowish tone in a pale complexion Now why is this so?

The reason has to do with the physical composition of our eyes. One does not need to know the facts, but can readily convince oneself of the truth by dropping a spot of purple ink upon a piece of white paper, and viewing it steadily for a few moments; gradually a yellowish ring will form around the purple spot.

There are a few other simple experiments which you can make which will show you the effect of red, blue, and green tones upon your complexion Red reflects a rosy tint upon the complexion If you stand in the shadow of a red surface, you will note the reddish shadow cast upon your skin and clothing That's why a soft red is a friendly color for a pale complexion

Green brings out red in the skin and therefore is a bad color for people with a vivid complexion, but a good color for a pale person, for it brings color in her face

Brilliant blue is apt to bring out an orange or yellowish cast in your skin One who is pale will find this an unfriendly color and should avoid it It is apt to make such a person appear paler and more sallow

Just a word of warning about the so-called "fashionable shades" Remember, that just because a color in itself is beautiful does not mean that it will be becoming to you. In selecting your most becoming colors, 'Know thyself'—consider the shade of your hair color of your eyes and tone of your skin The right colors on the right type.

Race Horses Oddly Named

The odd names given to race horses are always interesting and invariably have reason, which is more than can be said of the names of famous gallopers of the early part of the Nineteenth century Among these quaint names are recorded 'Jack Come Tickle Me" "Jenny Come Tye Me," "I Am Little—Pity My Condition," "Sweeter When Clothed," "Watch Them and Catch Them," and 'Britons Strike Home." One wonders what the modern bookmaker would make of these labels on a hot day Probably the name which has given the fraternity most trouble in recent years was Volodyovski, which won the Derby in 1901

All Her Fault

FRANK FRISCH, STANLEY HARRIS, JOHN McGRAW & WALTER JOHNSON

The World Series of 1924 opens today.

The initial game, between the Washington Senators, champions of the American League, and New York Giants, four-times champion of the National circuit, will be played in the National Capital.

The series will be a clash between a famous strategist, John J. McGraw, who has been in the game since 1902, and Stanley Harris, less than 28 years old, the youngest manager in the majors, who is just completing his fifth year in big league baseball.

Walter Johnson, Washington ace, will be on the mound for the Nats, and numbered among the stars in the New York line-up is Frank Frisch, the "Fordham flash."

Peck Sharpe Willing to Learn Card Trick

One of the funniest characters in sport is Peck Sharpe, who played baseball back in the Dark ages. Several years ago Peck, Mike Cantillon, E. J. Archambault, well-known Milwaukeean, and Germany Schaefer went to Hot Springs together. The first night of their stay they started a card game; Cantillon and Archambault playing against Peck and Schaefer. Wishing to have a little sport with the comedians, Mike and Archie "framed" them, winning about $200. The next morning Cantillon told Sharpe what they had done, at the same time tendering him the money.

"Keep the coin, but tell me how you did it," was Peck's quick comeback.

Dunbar Township Loses to Mount Pleasant, 20-0; Red and Black Outfit May Be in for Shakeup

Tom Connelly is one of the umpires of the American League selected to do service during the World Series. He will be behind the plate.

Poor Showing Made in Second Half Attributed to Breaking of Training.

ARE TOO EASILY HURT

After playing a bang-up game the first half of the combat with the strong Mount Pleasant High eleven yesterday, the Dunbar Township High griddor literally "blew up" in the second half and the home team won a 20-0 verdict. For the second time this year, the Dunbarites, favorites in the betting, lost out. Mount Pleasant public sentiment, as well as the money, was towards the visiting red and black squad. The defeat administered the neighboring school was a surprise to the high school as well as Mount Pleasant.

For the first two quarters the red and black eleven was a human fighting machine but with the opening of the second half, the pep disappeared while the home team began to regain its confidence. The defense of the township eleven was rugged and the offensive very feeble.

This was the second game of the season for the Dunbar eleven and its second defeat, a fumble defeating the local team in a combat with Confluence last Saturday. Although fumbles were numerous for the neighboring town, none of them terminated in touchdowns.

Dunbar township kicked off with "Jakie" McCloy receiving the kick. The ball swayed to and fro in midfield without either side giving in, in the first ten minutes of play. Mount Pleasant made three first downs in succession during which time an offside penalty was inflicted, placing the ball on the Dunbar 20-yard line. "Jakie" McCloy carried the ball over, but his eleven was penalized for holding. "Buck" Haas, for the township team, was injured in the play. Mount Pleasant lost the ball on the two-yard line. After punting, Sweeney intercepted a forward pass made by the Mount Pleasant team. Two first downs were made by the red and black. Pfrogner was hurt and taken out of the game by the Mount Pleasant team. Mount Pleasant made four first downs in the second quarter. The first half ended with the Mount Pleasant team holding the ball on Dunbar's three-yard line.

Mount Pleasant kicked off in the second half. After making a first down, Dunbar fumbled and the home team recovered. A steady march to the goal was made by the borough eleven, with H. McCloy going over the line for the first marker. The extra point by a line buck failed.

The Dunbarites received the kickoff and the scenes prior to the first touchdown were mimicked. After making a first down, Dunbar fumbled and Mount Pleasant recovered and again marched steadily to the goal. "Jakie" McCloy carried the oval across. He sent a neat drop-kick between the goal posts for an extra-pointer.

Dunbar received for the third time. After three plays for substantial gains, Mount Pleasant was penalized for off-side. An exchange of punts was made in mid-field. With the ball on the Dunbar 30-yard line, the home team began its third steady march to the goal. Posta crossed the mark for the third counter. "Jakie" McCloy easily booted a drop-kick for the extra point. The ball was in mid-field with Dunbar when the game ended. The final score was 20-0.

The McCloy brothers starred in the game. Both are excellent line plungers and are hard to stop.

The township team gave indications that the lads were not in the best physical condition. The players were injured easily when they got into the thick of the melee. Haas, Shallenberger, Zeka, Gillespie, Trissue and others were relieved.

The exhibition of football given by the township eleven in the last half is apt to bring about a complete shakeup of the team in every department. With the opening of school on Monday, things are expected to happen.

"Slick" Sweeney, every inch of his nick name, weighing 116 pounds, played a dandy game at quarterback. He engineered the eleven like an experienced man, but the backfield men could not produce.

Next Saturday, South Brownsville will appear at the Trotter field.

The line-up:

Dunbar Twp.—0		Mt. Pleasant—20
W. Blakely	L. E.	Donnelly

COKERS MEET BEST JEANNETTE HAS YET PRODUCED TODAY

Connellsville High School goes up against a stiff proposition this afternoon when the Jeannette High School team comes here for its first game in Coker territory. The visitors are reputed to have the best team in the history of the school and anticipate being in the running for the W. P. I. A. League title.

Connellsville is somewhat crippled but will throw its strongest line-up into the game at its opening. The visitors are said to be prepared to take no chances with the locals and will use their best.

One of the features this afternoon will be the cheering duel. The locals have not yet reached their peak in the yelling department, getting a late start, but nevertheless they expect to hold their own with the 300 or more rooters coming here with Jeannette.

"Ted" Pritchard Is Home From St. Paul

Joseph Theodore Pritchard, crack southpaw, hailing from Leisenring No. 1, who pitched for Flint, Mich., Minneapolis and St. Paul, the latter two minos in the American Association returned to his home Thursday. While in the association, Ted turned in two victories against three defeats. He won seven and lost four with Flint, in the Michigan-Ontario league.

The cheering was excellent, although the Mount Pleasant school outnumbered the township high about 20 to 1. Close to 200 were in attendance from Dunbar Township. The total attendance was 1,300.

William Klem, one of the best known officials in the National League, will officiate at first base.

Umpire Quigley, another National League product, will be stationed at third base for the opening game of

Celtic Football Team Has Election

The Celtic football team elected officers at a meeting held last evening. "Toots" Penn is captain and George Shaw, manager. The club would like to arrange games with teams in the 16-19 year-old class.

Grid Glimpses at Mt. Pleasant.

The success of the Mount Pleasant eleven is attributed to Coach Jelbart, an experienced man of the gridiron, who loves to play, watch or coach the game, giving the preference to the former.

Among the graduates and former players of the Dunbar Township High School who watched the game and rooted for the red and black were: "Ted" and "Billy" Pritchard, Ray Miller, "Shorty" Houpt, "Nick" Petrasovich and Washington.

The Dunbar team has yet to cross its opponent's goal line.

It wasn't a "dark horse" that beat D. T. yesterday. It took a real football team to do it, despite the poor showing of the local eleven.

"Whazza matter, Dunbar? Snap out of it."

The favorites don't always win. They must beat the other fellow to cop the honors.

"Too much McCloy brothers," a fan cried during the game. The brothers made repeated attacks for good gains through the line.

A shake-up in the Dunbar team is apt to be made next week. From the showing on the field yesterday, it is probable that "late parties," would be revealed.

Canada has nearly 360 golf clubs, and more than $25,000,000 has been invested in land and buildings. The amount spent each year on playing golf in the Dominion easily exceeds that figure.
